The Pan-American Party Bids Farewell to the Iron and Gas City.

BRIEF STOP MADE AT JEANNETTE.

Interesting Inspection of the Great Tank Glass Process.

THANKS TO THE PITTSBURG PEOPLE

The great International Congress party has seen Pittsburg, and, while it has not precisely died, it has gone to Philadelphia. The departure from this city took place promptly at 7:20 o'clock yesterday morning. With the ringing of the bell, engine No. 1053 steamed proudly out of the Union depot, as gay with bunting and flags as a marshal of a Fourth of July parade. Before the special train pulled out, at 6 o'clock in the morning, Superintendent Pitcairn's special car left for Jeannette, carrying James B. Scott and Captain C. W. Batchellor, of the Pittsburg Entertainment Committe; James H. Chambers and H. Sellers McKee, the owners of the window glass

Nearly all of the Spanish-American gentlemen slept in their berths on the pecial train. Few of them were out of bed when the start was made from Pittsburg. Some had not even risen by the time the train reached Jeannette, and missed the interesting trip through the great glass plant. They supposed it was like the glass works already visited, not having fully understood the tank furnace system in use there, and therefore made no special effort to see it. Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll went through the city bound eastward, on the imited express, which drew out of the depot five minutes shead of the special. Some of the Pennsylvania Railroad officials learned of his presence after the train had started when they expressed regret that they had

Outside of the regular members of the cial were: R. E. Pettit, General Superintendent of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Robert Pitcairn, Superintendent of the Pittsburg division; Augustus Trump, Assistant Superintendent of the Pitts-burg division; George W. Boyd, As-sistant General Passenger Agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company; Thomas E. Watt, Passenger Agent for the Western District; Harold Peirce and John H. Page, of the New York Life Insurance Company. CARNEGIE GOT ON BOARD.

Mr. Walker Blaine and Mr. Andrew Carnegie accompanied the party from this city to Philadelphia. The train stopped for a minute at Homewood, and Mr. Carnegie there got aboard. The train ran to Jeannette in 50 minutes. It attracted much attention from the people who were up in the towns and villages through which it passed. The decorations of the locomotive told every person what party it was that was rushing slong the rail with so much haste. Breekfast was served immediately after the departure from the city.

The foreign travelers were told that they were about to pass over the most picturesque portion of the entire tour, and they sat at the windows to watch the passing panofrom abroad come nearly all from mountainous lands, and the sight of the huge hills is pleasant to them. The character of the ountry about Pittsburg added a great deal the pleasure of their visit bere. them who spoke on this subject said that they had grown very tired of the table-cloth character of the Western country. At 8:10 A. M. the train stopped at Jeannette. On a switch running into the property of the Chambers & McKee Glass Company stood Superintendent Pitcairn's private car and a day coach. This conveyed the party to the shops. Messrs. Chambers and McKee and the Pittsburg committeemen received the visitors at the train. During the hurried tour through the great shops the two enterprising proprietors took pains to explain to the tourists all the details of the work going on. Mr. McKee explained that the company had bought 400 acres of farm land, and had built the works and the pretty thriving town. "Our process," Mr. Me-"was an experiment in this country, but it has passed that stage some

THE DELEGATES INTERESTED.

Delegates Carnegie, Davis, Romero, Zelaya, Zegarra, Velarde and Castellanos many of the secretaries and attaches went through the shops. Mr. Blaine also took part in the inspection. The people of the town appeared in considerable numbers, and gazed with interest upon the centlemen Spanish America. The party went first to the shed, where the peculiar sand used was shown. Then they were led to the head of the great furnaces, where the perspiring workmen were shoveling the sand broken glass into the seething tanks. The visitors were given blue glasses to hold before their eyes when the furnace doors were opened. The quivering heat within threw out a light more intense than electricity and pained the naked eye. One of the spectators remarked that the Hebrew children would stand a poor show there. Mr. McKee explained that natural gas was used everywhere in the works, drawn from the earth in the immediate vicinity. Mr. Carnegie asked: "What will you do when the gas gives out?" Mr. McKee replied: "Make gas; but I'm going to prey on nature for awhile." "Yes," responded the millionaire steel man, "that's about all the praying a good many of us do."

The way was then taken to the far end of the long tanks, where the glass is taken from the glowing furnace. There two score of expers glass blowers, in a long line, each before his own furnace door, were watched at work. This was the most interesting place for all, and the stop here was a long one. The process of blowing the small mass of glass into a cylinder 5 feet long and at 15 inches in diameter, was watched with the keenest interest.

CLEVER GLASS BLOWERS.

There were many questions and exclamations of wonder, as the blower revealed his expertness in swinging and manipulating the fragile globe on the end of his pipe. For the benefit of the visitors, the blowers did a few extra maneuvers, and performed gyrations as fancy as those of an Indian club swinger. A cooled cylinder was cut open by a workman with a red-hot iron, and the visitors were led to the flattening ovens, There the cylinder is laid upon a flat surface in a hot oven, and heated until it opens out and becomes a large flat sheet. It posses thence, on cunningly devised carriers, to the cooling oven, and thence to the building where the cutters work. Every process was viewed in order. In the cutting room Mr. Curtis startled Dr. Yarrow, of the army, by calling to him, "Come here, Doctor, quick; there's been an accident." The surgeon hurried to the table, where Mr. Curtis stood in a crowd, and the State Department agent A man has broken a piece of glass At 9 o'clock, before the inspection had been completed, the call was made that the time was up, and the party started in a hurry for the train. Mr. McKee asked for a delay until he could send a man to a TAPT'S PHILADELPHIA DENTAL ROOMS. building some distance away to bring a great load of elegant souvenirs. But the travelers could not wait; and though they were sorry, they hurried to the cars. Messrs. l'ettit, Watt, Boyd and Page went on to Al-toons. At 9 o'clock the special resumed its way toward the East. A few wavings of hands and liftings of bats, and it was gone into the mountain distance.

Before going the members of the Congressional party all took occasion to thank, in the warmest manner, the Pittsburg gentlemen for the style in which the entertain ment was conducted here. The recollec-tions of the Pittsburg visit will form a very bright spot on the tablets of their memory. BAPTISTS' ANNUAL MEETING.

In spite of the bad night a great many people visited the brilliantly lighted iron and glass structure. Many men who did not have the quarter to spare stood along Duquesne way in the drizzle, and from the outside admired the glare of the electric lights and the heavy

Within, the exhibition of the process of welding steel, iron, copper and nickel by electricity, shown by the Thomson Electric Welding Company, interested the greatest number of people. The welding machine was constantly surrounded by so great a crowd that many persons were unable to do more than catch sight of the operator's hat. fine and promise to do better. Expert machinists were heard to say that the process was one of the most wonderful

LEE GETS 12 YEARS.

The Baptist Congress is a gathering of the He Feels Grateful, and Judge White Says He Got Off Very Easy.

Laura Bailey and Miss Donaldson Withdraw the Plea of Guilty.

DIVORCES GRANTED AND APPLIED FOR

William E. Lee, who was found guilty of murder in the second degree for the killing of John T. Natcher, was sentenced in the extreme limit of the penalty by Judge White yesterday.

Just after the opening of the court District Attorney Porter asked for judgment in Lee's case. Lee was present with his wife and was called before the Court. When asked if he had anything to say before the sentence was pronounced, he answered in the affirmative. He said he had many things to say, but by the advice of his coun-sel he would not speak of them. He knew he could not shrink from the judgmen of a court far higher than this earthly one. He alleged many untruths had been published of his crime. Judge White said to him that had the jury found him guilty in the first degree he would not have disturbed their verdict, and that he, Lee, pot off well. Lee replied that he knew it, and that the jury and his coun-sel all did well for him. He then blamed his action entirely on whisky, and said that so long as a man can buy liquor to muddle his brain that no jury should find him guilty of murder in the first degree. Judge White said if that were the case men would get drunk for the purpose of committing murder. He told Lee that the nenalty to murder in the second degree was not severe enough, and if he could he would impose a heavier one. He then sentenced him to pay the costs and undergo imprisonment for a period of 12 years in the Western Peni-

After a short conversation with his wife, Laura Bailey and Florence Donaldson who had pleaded guilty to the charges against them in the case of May Sullivan, the Scottdale girl, came up in the Criminal Court, yesterday, for sentence. Judge White intimated that the sentence would be rather severe, and Attorney Reardon at once withdrew the plea of guilty and said that the women would stand trial. Judge White allowed the withdrawal and directed Messrs. Lazear and Orr appeared for the firm and Messrs. Johnston, Dickey and Martin for the defendants.

The firm's attorneys claimed that by the witnesses examined on Friday they had proved all the allegations in their bill and were entitled to the preliminary injunction. The attorneys for the defense contended who pay cash want to buy.

They held further that the firm had not lived up to its contract, as it had not paid the wages agreed upon in the wage list. The employes had agreed to arbitrate their dispute if the company would pay the wages on the list pending the arbitration. The matter of using "pluga" and "formers," about which the present difficulty arose, was provided for in an agreement submitted to the manufacturers, but it had been stricken out and the agreement signed made no reference to them. Judge Ewing took the papers in the case and reserved his decis-

Friend stated that the exceptions to the assignee's account were of a characte that would not tend to diminish the fund. and there is no reason why the money in the hands of the assignee should not be distributed so the creditors could get their dividends promptly, and thus save the interest on the fund. The consent of Assignee Bailey to the distribution was also filed, and Judge Ewing granted the order.

W. H. McGary. Times at Chicago.

Why She Resigned From the Prohibition National Committee.

MRS. ELLEN FOSTER AS A PROSELTTER

Some rather startling news in regard to the inside workings of the W. C. T. U. National Convention, now in session at Chicago, is contained in a letter recently received from a Pennsylvania delegate by Mr. Andrew Bryce, of Mt. Washington, the well-known third party advocate.

The information is to the effect that Miss Frances Willard was arrested last Tuesday as an outgrowth of the racket in connection with the financial administration and management of the Chicago Temperance Hospital, an establishment run upon the anti-

There is said to exist a violent antagon ism between Mrs. Foster, of Iowa, and Miss Frances Willard. The trouble is of long standing. Eight years ago at the St. Louis Convention, Mrs. Foster introduced a mi-nority report in opposition to the previ-ously passed resolutions sympathizing with that political party which incorporated in its platform a prohibition plank as in oppo-sition to the license system. Since that time Mrs. Foster has steadily fought the majority led by Miss Willard, assuming an attitude of steady hostility to the principles indorsing tentatively the National Prohibition party. Since Mrs. Foster's appearance on the stump for the National Repubin the last Presidental campaign, she is stated to have left no stone

She has been getting her fences in order by coming to Chicago three mouths be ore the present convention, and her prominence has enabled her, it is boldly asserted by Miss Willard's friends, to give a color to Associated Press reports of the preparations for the proceedings of the convention, which does great injustice to the sentiments of th majority of the convention. So well defined has the protest against Mrs. Foster's methods become that a formal address to the country is stated to be in course of preparation by the Willardites. Miss Willard, on her part, keenly regrets the fact that pending the last Presidental election, she was led to accept the position of an advisory member of the National Prohibition Executive Committee, a position she has since resigned, feeling that the slightest connection with a political body or party was misconstrued, and was leading to schisms and secessions among the W. C. T. U. members, under the fomenting influence of Mrs. Foster. Miss Willard's friends are very indignant that the "non-nies"-meaning the class who are organizing a secession in the National W. C. T. The election takes place next Tuesday and may prove to be the most exciting episode in the history, of the organi-

Miss Willard's arrest is now claimed to have been a conspiracy upon the part of Mrs. Foster's adherents. The details were carefully corked up, but it is learned that upward of 50 millionaires rushed forward with bail and offers of backing. There seems to be music ahead in the W. C. T. U.

THE MARCH OF PROGRESS. The New States Are About to Have Electric

Light Plants. Since President Harrison has proclaimed Washington, Montana and the Dakotas as new States of the Union, the former two are making great efforts to keep abreast with the march of progress. The Westinghouse Electric Company yesterday secured the contracts for furnishing the machinery to generate two alternating current central station plants of 1,500 lights and an arc light plant of 35 lights in these cities.

A SAVING OF MUCH TIME.

The B. & O. Will Run a Train Out of Pitts burg on a New Schedule

An important improvement in the passen ger service of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will be made to-day. Hitherto the traveling man who wished to go to Chicago from Pittsburg was forced to leave this city in the middle of the afternoon, arriving in Chicago in the early morning, thus losing almost half a day of valuable time. It is with the intention of saving this half day to the traveling public that the Baltimore and Ohio has decided to put on a new train, with all improvements, between the two

The new train will be composed of vestibule cars, and will leave Pittsburg for the first time this evening at 7:30 o'clock, connecting at Benwood with the N. Y., P. & C. limited, and arriving in Chicago at 10:55 Monday morning. By this arrangement the necessity of leaving Pittsburg in the middle of the afternoon is obviated, and commercial men, especially, will hail the new train as a boon. There are some minor changes of the Baltimore and Onio schedule to go into effect to-day, but no change is to be made in the running of important trains.

THE GREAT ELECTRIC DISPLAY.

The Court House Attracts Favorable Attention From All Onlookers. The electric display upon the Court House tower, which has attracted the attention of so many people for the last three nights, was fired again last night and shown to give a newspaper influence you to buy until you have seen the quality the workingmen, who on other nights of the week were engaged in their avocations, a chance to see it in full operation.

The most striking tenture of the exhibit will be its removal at 10 a. M. on Monday when the immense boards to which the fix-tures are fastened will be cut away and dropped to the pavement. This is regarded by the electricians as the most interesting point of the whole exhibition, as when the globes are shattered by the fall the reports will be like a volley of musketry, and every Anarchist of Allegheny county will be frightened into the belief that chaos has come too soon for anarchical revolutionary forecasts. This, the Court House officials say, is the cheapest as well as the quickest method of disposing of the beautiful lines of light constructed with so much labor and
